The Deloitte CitizenConnect Platform

Powered by DigitalMIX™

Leveraging Adobe digital creativity to connect citizens and relevant government services anywhere, anytime, on any device
Life is a journey that necessitates engaging with local agencies, state, and city governments at key steps along the way. From birth certificates, to driver’s and marriage licenses, change of address notifications, voter registration, and scheduling municipal services or local aid – we are dependent on the public sector to provide these services.

And government agencies understand the critical role they play in our lives. Today they are envisioning an entirely new way to connect with us in order to deliver seamless, digital experiences across Web, mobile, and social channels – pushing personalized and relevant information to us in real time to help us navigate the administration associated with our specific life events.

Additionally, proactive governments are looking to increase revenues by bringing new businesses to their communities. Digital technology offers advanced opportunities for market services that use personalization, targeted communications, and cross-selling strategies to anticipate citizen needs in a digital world. Progressive agencies understand that leveraging digital technology is key to lowering their costs and improving performance over the inefficiencies associated with flat web sites and staffing local offices and call centers.

Adobe Digital Government solutions are being used by government agencies to create great content and deliver it across any channel both efficiently and securely.
Solution Benefits

The platform includes digital innovations from Deloitte, built on the Adobe Experience Cloud, to make citizen outreach easier. The Deloitte CitizenConnect platform makes it easier for state and local agencies to:

- Anticipate citizen needs, delivering relevant content seamlessly across multiple devices and social networks
- Allow citizens to interact with a single gateway that consolidates their interactions with various government agencies, integrating data across agencies with citizen permission and eliminating government silos
- Put a stop to change fees from outside providers, giving government agencies the ability to take back control of their portals and administer them through cloud, onsite, or managed services
- Allow governments to provide efficient, effective, and elegant services that drive revenue from government services

This new digital experience from Deloitte and Adobe gives governments a competitive advantage for facilitating economic development, at the same time they are making it easier for citizens to work and play where they live. Moving from silo-based solutions to a user-centered platform opens the door to governments for new ideas and crowd sourcing, so that they can better understand their citizens’ existing needs in order to anticipate tomorrow’s requirements and have them ready.

The Deloitte CitizenConnect platform includes Deloitte’s methodologies, processes, and a series of templates and custom modules for Adobe Experience Cloud, built to accelerate implementation and customization time. Components can be delivered across multiple devices to deploy premium programming swiftly, cost effectively, and at scale.
